HOTTEST IN YEARS

Present.

Copenhagen, June 23.—The period of intense heat continues, according to reports from Berlin, over the greater part of Germany, the only exception being in the western part of the country. The drought has not yet been broken by heavy rains. Berlin on Wednesday experienced heat exceeding only three times in seventy years and at this time fully.

A little rain has fallen throughout Germany and the Berlin Tagblatt is informed there appears to be slight prospects of a change. Extension of forest fires is expected, and in some parts of Germany owing to continued drought, and soldiers have been called to assist in checking them.

According to an authoritative statement of a German officer of Berlin, the protracted drought and dry weather, following the late, cold spring, has had a most unfavorable effect on the yield of fruit and particularly of early vegetables, which this year are of especial importance owing to the disappearance of potatoes. Notwithstanding the planting of double acreage of vegetables, only one crop has been obtained, and compared with two times the yields are disappointing. Extra planting probably will not result in any increase in total productions.

HOLD BRAZILIAN FOR KEEPING LOAN FUNDS

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Paris, June 23.—A dispatch from Lyons says that Vendon y Mendoza, formerly a Brazilian deputy, has been arrested in Berne, charged with having appropriated the proceeds of the sale of a 10,000,000 franc loan which he was entrusted with by the British Government, with placing in France. The dispatch says he sold securities at a reduced price and pocketed the difference, whereas the Brazilian Government brought charges against him. In the course of his first interrogation in the French criminal court, he is reported to have explained he retained the money because he feared if he remitted it to Brazil the ship might be torpedoed.

THOUSAND VICTIMS IN AUSTRIA BLAST

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]

Amsterdam, June 23.—More than one thousand persons were killed or injured or are missing in consequence of an explosion in a munition factory at Bioeweg, according to an announcement made in the lower house of the Austrian parliament, as forwarded in

The casualties were given by the minister as follows: Dead, 136; missing, 170; wounded, 625. Of the wounded, 520 received only slight injuries. The minister said the explosion probably was due to lack of caution on the part of the employed in trench mortar workshop.

EXPECTED RECOVERY OF MRS. ROBERTS' SLAYER

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]

Waukeesa, June 23.—Miss Grace Ask, slayer of Mrs. D. Roberts, obtained some sleep last night and fears her recovery were today removed. The greatest handicap is the patient's ference for death. "I want to die, there can be no mental or spiritual cure, so why a physical?" she murmured.

Mrs. Roberts' funeral will be held this afternoon. Dr. Roberts, the fifty-year old veterinarian for love of whom Miss Lusk committed murder, promised to maintain silence as to

COLLEGE HEADS PAY TRIBUTE TO MILTON PROMINENT EDUCATORS SPEAK AT CLOSING EXERCISES OF GOLDEN JUBILEE WEEK.

LAUD PROGRESS MADE

School's Noble Influence Extolled by Distinguished Guests at Commencement Exercises.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Milton, Wis., June 23.—A large audience gathered Thursday afternoon at the college auditorium for the closing exercises of the Milton College semi-centennial jubilee. Representatives of the state's leading educational institutions were on the program and congratulated Milton College upon its success during the past fifty years and its bright prospects for the future.

The invocation was offered by the Rev. W. O. Gardner, D.D., president of Carroll College.

The first speaker of the afternoon was President Booth Colwell Davis, D.D., of the University of Wisconsin. He read a cordial letter of congratulation from the faculty and trustees of Alfred and added his own personal felicitations.

The next speaker was President Edward Dwight Eaton of Beloit College. He expressed the thought that a special bond of sympathy obtains between Milton and Beloit because of their both being in the same county. He paid a glowing tribute to the scholarly attainments and many engaging qualities of heart and mind of Milton's president, Dr. W. C. Dana.

The speaker then reviewed the history of two people indicates advancing years and life's near coming close. But not so the semi-centennial of a college. This is but the beginning of a growing dawn, a refugent with promise of a greater, better and happier future.

The congratulations of Milwaukee-Dowager College were most graciously tendered by Edwin Clara Sablin, the able president of that institution. The keynote of her address was the surpassing value of a college like that at Milton to the community in which it is located. How lacking, indeed, would life here be without Milton College. The value to any community of a true Christian college can not be overestimated.

President Walter O. Carrier spoke eloquently on behalf of Carroll College, the oldest collegiate institution in the state, it having been founded in January, 1846, just three years before the charter of the University of Wisconsin was granted. The work of Carroll College was suspended for several years during and after the war because of its faculty and student body responding to our country's call in its time of need and trial in such large numbers. President Carrier said his coming to Milton's jubilee was both a duty and a pleasure, and he heartily congratulated Milton College and all its friends upon the happy occasion that had brought so many of its friends together.

In the absence of President Clarke of Salem College, that institution was represented by Rev. A. J. C. Bond, formerly pastor of the Milton Junction Seventh Day Baptist church. Now we are engaged in a world-wide war of destruction, but destruction that there may follow a better construction and in this great work the best and most potent of the forces that can be brought to bear is the Christian college, of which Milton is a shining example.

One of Milton's truest and best friends is President Samuel Plantz, D. D., Ph. D., L. D., of Lawrence college. He is affectionately known to all old-time Milton students as "Sam Plantz." His eloquent tribute to Milton college touched the hearts of many of the boys and girls of "Auld Lang Syne." "On one occasion," said President Plantz, "a traveler in England asked the way to Rugby. The one inquired of, sneeringly asked: 'What do you want to go there for? There's nothing there but a school! But what a school, the best in the world because of Tom Brown of Rugby.' So, also, may it be said of Milton, not disparagingly, but lovingly and gratefully. There's nothing there but a school—a school founded through the love of truth and goodness shown by the brave pioneers of this region and enshrined in the hearts of thousands of noble sons and daughters in this our own and in other lands far away. Yes, a school about whose name clusters precious memories of a sacred and unforgetting past—memories of names that often recur to the mind of Prof. S. L. Plantz, President W. C. Whitford, whose inspirational words and life have quickened and bettered the lives of thousands of Milton's great army of other day students; dear Aunt Chloe Whitford, of precious memory; 'Aunt Ruth' Whitford, for so many years the able and faithful co-worker of Milton's great president; Prof. Edward Seating, that princely scholar and truly manly man; dear Major S. S. Rockwood, that fine type of true Truman Saunders, a sturdy, scholarly teacher and high-minded gentleman, called from us all too soon, as were also those other two men of noble mind and truly fine heart, Professors Henry Doty Maxson and William Frank Place; and last, but by no means least, he who still remains among us in his dignified and graceful old age, the dearly loved and beloved Prof. Albert Whitford."

President Lorenzo Dow Harvey, A. M., Ph. D., member of the class of '71, of the far-famed St. Lawrence college, greeted the gathering with a thought-provoking address that entered an eloquent plea that our colleges and other institutions of higher learning apply themselves more assiduously to the duty of the high task of fitting young Americans for a better discharge of the duties of citizenship, in any great national crisis that may arise.

The last speaker of the afternoon was Dean E. Birge, D. Sc., Ph. D., of the University of Wisconsin. He emphasized the importance of our having educational institutions under the church auspices, as the state conducted under direction of the state. With either of these lacking our educational system would be sadly deficient. He paid a glowing tribute to Milton college, stating that during the period of thirty years Milton college exerted a greater influence on the educational life of the state than any other school in the state, indeed greater than did all other educational institutions of the state combined.

The week's commencement program was concluded by the President's reception at his home on High street, where the most of the helpful and largely attended receptions ever given in Milton. At the reception Dr. Randolph announced that over $50,000 of the additional endowment of $50,000 had been secured. This announcement produced unbounded enthusiasm and proved a fitting climax to Milton's Golden Jubilee.

LOCAL BOYS IN MARINES ARE MADE SHARPSHOOTERS

James T. Brown, a former member of Company M, and who used to play a tuck in the Gower City band, and Bradley Lawrence, also of this city, are now privates in the marine corps and are stationed at Paris Island, South Carolina. ARRANGE MEETINGS IN SILO CAMPAIGN

Five Demonstrations in as Many Townships Will Be Held Next Week, Markham Announces.

Five silo demonstrations are scheduled for next week in the campaign which is being conducted by the Rock county for a more extensive use of ensilage as stock feed. L. A. Markham, county agricultural agent, announced today. It is expected that fully one thousand farmers will be reached by these meetings at which practical questions in connection with silo building and the feeding of ensilage will be discussed. The meetings will be held as follows:

Town of Prairie Wednesday afternoon at the E. F. Funk farm; committee in charge composed of William McConnon, R. H. Howard, Will Gleason, E. F. Funk and R. K. Overton. Town of Bradford, Friday afternoon at the William Reid farm; committee in charge, John Waugh, Chas. Boynton, M. Wilkins and W. A. Dean. Town of Avon, Thursday afternoon at the A. S. Knudson farm; committee in charge, A. S. Knudson. This meeting will be held in connection with the gathering of the Rock county Guernsey breeders' association which has charge of the program.

Town of Newark, Wednesday afternoon; A. S. Sautter and Charles Brown in charge of arrangements. Town of Plymouth meeting will be at the Archie Arnold farm; Archie Arnold and H. G. Rogers in charge. It is also probable that meetings will be arranged for the towns of Porter and Magnolia.

BAD WASHOUTS CAUSE DELAY IN TRAFFIC

All trains from the north, on both C. & M. and St. Paul and the O. and N. W. were delayed this morning on account of the heavy rains and washouts in the upper part of the state. A bridge washout north of Watertown on the Northwestern delayed all trains between Fond du Lac and Janesville for about five hours. Trains between this city and Milwaukee, and between Chicago and Milwaukee, on the main division of the St. Paul road, were delayed definitely on account of a mile of track washed out between Elm Grove and Wauwatosa.

Friday's Markets. Chicago, June 23.—While fancy hogs were yesterday as high as on Thursday, the average price declined 22c, making a 35c break since Wednesday.

The best heavies reached $16.15. The quality of swine was the poorest of the season. There was a large proportion of common to fair "grassers" among the arrivals, some of them selling 85c below early Thursday's hog market entirely and 12,000 remained in the pens. Price range was widest of the season, with packers discriminating against common lots.

Receipts for today are estimated at 1,000 cattle, 10,000 hogs and 9,000 sheep, against 1,72 cattle, 14,004 hogs and 3,374 sheep a year ago.

The average price of hogs at Chicago was $15.50, against $15.73 Thursday and $17.74 two years ago.

Steady Cattle Trade. Cattle receipts yesterday were estimated at 2,500, largely direct. The few beef steers offered were steady, dismally fed heaves topping the market at $12.25. Butcher cattle and calves were steady. Quotations:

Choice to fancy steers... $12.90@13.80 Poor to good steers... 10.00@12.85 Yearlings fair to fancy... 10.00@12.45 Fat cows and heifers... 7.35@12.25 Canning cows and heifers... 5.50@7.25 Native bulls and stags... 6.50@11.50 Feeding cattle, 600@1,100... 8.25@10.00 Poor to fancy veal calves... 13.00@15.35

Early Hog Trade Is Best. Yesterday's hog market grew worse as the day advanced. Some fancy heavies sold steady early while most business was around 20c below Thursday's average on the general run of common to good hogs. Quotations:

Bulk of sales... $15.25@15.80 Heavy butchers and ship pigs... 15.80@16.15 Light butchers... 190@230 Light bacon, 145@190 lbs... 15.80@16.05 Heavy packing, 200@400... 14.80@15.75 Mixed packing, 200@250... 15.20@15.60

Hbs... 11.25@14.60
Stags, 60 lbs. dockage per head... 15.85@16.25

Spring Lambs Steady. Two-thirds of yesterday's sheep and lambs were billed directly to packers from Louisville and Nashville. Spring lambs sold steady and shorn mostly 15@26c lower. Quotations:

Lambs, common to fancy... $13.50@16.75 Lambs, poor to good culs... 10.90@13.40 Yearlings, poor to best... 10.50@14.75 Wethers, poor to best... 9.75@12.90

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

The man who wins is an average man. Not built on any particular plan. Not blest with any peculiar luck. Just steady and earnest and full of pluck.

When asked a question he does not He knows and answers "no" or "yes"; When set a task that the rest can't do, He buckles down till he's put it through.

Three things he's learned: that the man who tries to please his employer's eyes, That it pays to know more than one thing well, That it doesn't pay all he knows to tell.

So he works and waits till one fine day There's a better job with bigger pay; And the man who shirked whenever they could, Are bossed by the man whose work made good.

For the man who wins is the man who works Who neither labor nor trouble shirks, Who uses his hands, his head, his eyes; The man who wins is the man who tries.

The sentiment contained in this little poem is so true that it is worth thinking about. In every profession and in every calling are a few people who stand out beyond the front of great leaders. They are conspicuous because they have accomplished unusual things, and the world honors them.

There was never a time in history when leaders were in greater demand than they are today, or when the supply was more abundant. For half a century the thought and brain of the world has centered on peaceful pursuits and rapid strides have been made in every department. It has been a long and prosperous era of invention and discovery, and while the arts and sciences have rapidly developed, commercial and industrial life have kept pace with the procession.

It is claimed by manufacturers—and the claim is true—that every decade means a new equipment of machinery, and the man who fails to recognize this demand, soon falls behind and drops out of the race. This is just as true of the farmer, and if he fails to keep pace with the rapidly moving procession he soon becomes a "has been."

For the past two or three years the thought of the old world has been revolutionized and war is the all-absorbing topic. Inventive genius has been transformed and centered on destruction of both life and property, and the methods employed transcendent for brutality and wantonness the marks of the dark ages.

The brain which God gave us as a part of our equipment, and which has become a demon incarnate, and is now devoted to submergence, deadly gases and all sorts of hellish devices for the destruction of human life.

This peace loving land, without an enemy, after long being a spectator to this brutal warfare, has at last been compelled to engage in the struggle in the interest of humanity, and it remains to be seen how much we will be influenced by the spirit of brutality.

In the early days when fire swept over the country, the most successful way to fight it was by setting a back fire, and so "fighting fire with fire" became a common expression. This principle applies to modern warfare, and to the brain and genius of America today is engaged in efforts to checkmate the enemy.

The submarine menace will never be overcome by attempting to bridge the Atlantic with a fleet of wooden ships. The building of a fleet is all right, for the nation has long needed a merchant marine, and never so badly as it does today.

It remains for American genius to discover some way to destroy the submarine. This is what the world is waiting for and the brain of the country is engaged in solving the problem.

The fact is fast gaining recognition that victory will finally be won over the sea and up among the clouds. The battlefields of France have practically been a deadlock for months, and while great armies of men have been mangled and slaughtered, but little advantage has been gained by either side.

Germany long since abandoned the idea of capturing Paris, and turned to submarine warfare to cut off the supplies of the allies. Her success is a matter of daily history. It has certainly resulted in wholesale destruction and some way must be found to checkmate it.

The battle in the air is more thrilling and thus far the allies seem to have the best of it. The best brain of the world has been and is still engaged in perfecting battleships in the air, and every morning little fleets of aeroplanes start out from their base to invade the enemies' territory.

The British fleets have a couple of machines loaded with bombs, conveyed by a dozen aeroplanes to protect them from attack. A correspondent of the New York Sun thus describes a battle in the air:

"The fun begins when all the bombs have been dropped and the squadron starts for home. On the way over the Germans have been able to make no effective resistance, but while the bombs fell their fighting planes got into the air, and now they attack to cut off the bombing squadron from the British lines. An aerial battle promptly ensues.

"It is a favorite Boche maneuver to detail some of his low machines to entice our fighters away from the main body and, when this has been accomplished, to attack the remainder with Fokkers, which dive from aloft on to the bombing-machines. This trick is now well known and the fighters rarely leave their charges until the latter are in comparative safety.

Sometimes a Hun of more sporting character than his brothers will wait alone for the returning convoy, hiding himself thousands of feet up in the clouds until he sees his moment. Then singling out a machine he will dive at it, pouring out a stream of bullets as he falls. Sometimes he achieves his object and a British machine falls to earth, but woe to the result the Hun does not alter his tactics. He dives clean through the whole block of machines down many thousands of feet, only flattening out when close to the ground.

"The whole affair is so swift—just one lightning dive—that long before a fighter can reach the Hun the latter is away, thousands of feet below, heading for home and safety. Every Fokker pilot knows that once his surprise dive is over he has no chance against another machine—the build of the Fokker only allows this one method of attack—and he does not stop to argue about it. His offensive dive becomes a defensive one—that is the main difference.

"Sometimes a large squadron of German machines, composed of various types of aeroplanes, intercepts a returning formation. If it attacks a grand aerial battle ensues. The British fighting machines spread out like a fan to allow the bombing-machines a chance of escape, and then attack the Huns as they arrive. In one place one British aeroplane will be defending itself from two or three German machines; close by two or three of our buses will be occupied in sending a Hun to his death; elsewhere more equal combats rage, and the whole sky becomes an active battlefield.

And when the machines perform marvelous evolutions, putting the best trick flying of pre-war days very much in the shade. No sooner has a pilot accounted for his foe by killing him, forcing him to descend, or making him think discretion the better part of valor, than he turns to the help of a hard-pressed brother, surprising the enemy by attack from the rear or otherwise creating a diversion."

The "Fokker" is a German machine and its descent from the clouds is like the swoop of an eagle in search of prey. We marvel at the inventive genius which produces these wonderful accessories of modern warfare, but are liable to overlook the fact that these machines are manned by average men who volunteer from the great rank and file of humanity—men of sublime courage and heroism, the kind of men found in every community.

The war is teaching us many lessons and among the most important is the lesson of personal responsibility. We profess to love the country, but for the first time that love is to be tested through sacrifice, the one and only test which always rings true.

The "slackers" are not confined to the men who seek to avoid military service. They are found in limited numbers everywhere—people who shirk all responsibility by refusing to lend financial aid and who regard the Liberty Loan and Red Cross as devices of his Satanic majesty.

The work of the world is carried on by average people, but if we would share in it we must be up to the average. This is a poor time for shirkers in any department. Let us give our money and be strong for the battle is on in deadly earnest.

The Daily Novelette

THE MIDDLE OF THE SANDWICH.

This is a crazy Novelette; Read on: 'tis one you'll never forget.

(This week's mystery.)

The man in white hesitated, paused, and came back. The man in black was still waiting.

A low full moon hung overhead. "Are your fingers insured?" said the man in white in a low but passionate voice.

"I am double jointed," replied the man in black without moving his lips.

A gray cat climbed a nearby post and sat on the mail box.

"Was it a good likeness?" asked the man in white.

The man in black swallowed. "Of whom?" he replied cunningly, and added quickly, as though because of the scruples. "It was a fair likeness."

"You recognized it?"

"As but the feet and the features. And the nails remained."

"Only a few were rusty, and they were in the bottles."

The man in white took the mail box and round its tail about a sythen tree. Its eyes gleamed wickedly after the departing figures.

A starling flinked.

The Liquor Traffic as an Enemy to Democracy.

When our government was formed one of the questions discussed here as well as in Europe was the capacity of the people of the United States for self government. It was realized that the life and stability of a democracy would depend upon the intelligence, judgment and character of the people. That much importance was placed upon this subject cannot be doubted for we find from the very beginning a liberal provision was made for churches and schools. That policy has continued until the present time and we all know these time-honored institutions and the quality of life and character they are calculated to inspire and develop are indispensable to a free people and democratic institutions.

But what about the liquor traffic and its influence upon our national life? It is a great organized destructive power extending into every corner of the country where the law will permit it to go. It deals out poison, causes disease, poverty, crime and degeneracy, fosters vice and immorality, wrecks homes, corrupts public institutions and like a cancer is a destroying force at the very foundation of our government.

The present anti-liquor movement has for its purpose the protection of society from this dangerous foe. It began in those parts of the country where the evils that accompany the liquor traffic had become firmly established. It has extended over the more vigorous and healthy portions of our nation and is now about to advance into those sections where the saloon and its accompanying evils are deep seated and of long duration, and it will not stop until the whole country shall be redeemed from this great curse.

ON THE SPUR of the MOMENT

ROY K. MOULTON

EVEN GOOD LITTLE GIRLS.

For long we thought a little maid. Through all the happy daytime played At skipping rope, at jacks or tea Or paper-dolls all quietly.

And scorned to join but for a while The pranks that little boys beguile. The climbings of a tree or fence And other rough diversions.

So thought we till the other day We watched some little maids at play With what a romping, shouting din. Oh, shades of Huckleberry Finn! Few jacks were here, few paper dills.

These little maids were overalls! Nor did they skip a rope, instead In turns they leaped from off a shed!

Well, be it so. Too soon, ah me! Their days of frolic will flee, Those chubby legs as on time.

In later years alas, are limbs! So let them frolic in their play And leap and scramble while they may.

When they are grown, who knows Will hobble-skirts be in again!

HAPPY THOUGHT. Look after the Job and the Joys will look after themselves.

OH! Said Mollie Mace to Sara Saints, "I think she goes the pace that saints."

Said Sara Saints to Mollie Mace, "I'm here, at least, she paints that face."

Turkish Towels. Turkey exports more towels than any other country which is largely because the average Turk has no use for a towel himself. When the first Turk made a towel he couldn't imagine what to do with it so he hid it in a tourist and in this way the Turkish towel industry arose. A Turk has no patience with a towel. As soon as he makes one he wants to have it out of his sight. He doesn't mind Turkish rugs and he will even smoke a Turkish cigarette, but a Turkish towel goes him going. The leading feature of a Turkish towel is that it can dry yourself on both sides, which makes it of special value. Operating a Turkish towel is quite a knack and most people develop their own styles of play. A man can get more vigorous exercise after a morning bath in drying his back with a Turkish towel than in hustling trunks. The only objection to Turkish towels as an exercise is that it doesn't get you in the open air.

The Missing Link. "The race has missed a 'missing link.' At least so Darwin seemed to think. This Link that somehow made escape."

Would link the human with the ape. Let Darwin's ilk, in ones and twos, Be linked with apes then, if they choose.

But we who have a little pride Would call that QUITE undignified. And anyway, we hardly think However 'missing' is the Link, (Or strayed or lost or something such.)

That we are missing very much. Speaking of incomes most men like to puff them out and most women like to blow them in.

THAT'S SO. A crazy nut, it seems to me, Is anyone like Sidney Durst. Before he nods he waits to see If I am going to nod first.

"Still after all, it's likely he has thought the very same of me!"

These inclement incidents are proven by government dope to have been out of line—most of them can be discounted in the general run of conditions. It is proven statistically that snow is much more likely to be encountered in April than in July or rainy weather in October.

Evansville News

Evansville, June 23.—This has been a busy week for the local Red Cross workers, and a successful one also. At the week's opening the membership of the Red Cross was between one hundred and fifty and two hundred names, but by the persistent efforts and active campaign throughout the city and the adjacent vicinity, the roll has increased until at midnight last night the pendulum of the Red Cross clock had swung to the eight hundred mark. Tonight will mark the close of the Red Cross week, and set aside by President Wilson, and it will also usher in the evening's festivities for the benefit of the local chapter. Mrs. Leonard Eager has had charge of the celebration and following is the program:

At 7:30 the parade of nurses, boy scouts, etc., led by the Evansville band, will form at the library corner and march down Main street to the C. and N. W. station and return to the booths erected at Madison street.

Music..... Evansville band Duff..... Boy Scouts
Music..... Band
Speech..... Dr. Blew
Music..... Male quartet Speech..... Rev. Father McDevott
Music..... Band

At the booth the Red Cross nurses and Boy Scouts will sell ice cream cones, etc., to refresh the inner man. Let everyone be out and by your presence show your loyalty to our city and our country.

Friday evening about forty friends of Eldon Hatfield tendered him a farewell party at the Baptist church parlors. Mr. Hatfield has joined the radio reserve service and as that company expect a call in the near future, his friends planned to meet and wish him farewell and God-speed.

An elaborate three-course dinner was served and during the evening the guest of honor was presented with a camera as a memento from his Evansville friends.

Miss Katinka Vanderlippe of Christiansburg, Norway, who has spent the past year in the United States pursuing a course of library work at Madison, is a guest at the Stanton Miller home on Madison street.

Miss Mary Green, who has been teaching at Chilton, Wis., is home for the summer vacation.

Miss Charlotte Conny has been spending the week in Brodhead, the guest of her sister, Mrs. Royal Clark.

Miss Reba Johnson of Beloit is a guest at the E. J. Reckord home.

James McCall, who has been quite ill at his home on East Main street, is slowly improving.

Mrs. Sam Heleson and two children, who have been visiting relatives at Ridgeway, Wis., are expected home today.

Miss Doris Copeland will entertain the following young ladies at a house party at Lake Kegonsa next week: Helen Myers, Dorothy Axtell, Mildred Cain, Beth Weaver, Charlene Doolittle, Hazel Van Wormer and Miss Isabelle.

Mrs. Roy Broughton and daughter, Pauline, were Evansville shoppers on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Verne Axtell and Mrs. George Winstone were guests of Janesville relatives Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Harris, Miss Cora Harris, Mrs. Charles Ballard and son Eugene, drove to Milwaukee on Monday and were guests at the W. Tolles home. Tuesday, Mrs. Ballard and Miss Harris went to Kenosha to attend the W. R. C. convention, and from there will go to Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Harris and Eugene Ballard returned home Thursday evening.

Miss Almira Brunell of Cincinnati, Ohio, is expected home today to attend her sister's wedding and for a short vacation.

Will Chapin of Stoughton was an Evansville visitor Friday.

Miss Dorothy Axtell entertained a party of young ladies in honor of Miss Sallie Maxwell, who is a guest in this city.

F. Waddell and Charles Bullard went to First lake fishing on Thursday.

Mrs. George Wolfe, Sr., and Miss Winetta Wolfe, and Malcolm Alden were visitors Friday for a visit.

The Good Times club will meet with Mr. and Mrs. Lew Fellows at Fellows' Station, Monday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. George Van Wart went to Green Bay, Friday afternoon. They were called there by an accident befalling their cousin, Merton Keyes, engineer at the Green Bay reform school, who was seriously burned at that plant Thursday, and whose condition is very critical. Mr. Keyes was a former Evansville resident.

Mrs. Frank Holmes returned today from Kenosha where she attended the W. R. C. convention.

Eunice Meggett entertained a party of girl friends Friday in honor of Beatrice Algrim of Cambridge, Wis., who is visiting here.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Greatsinger of Mendota, North Dakota, are here for a few days' visit. They made the trip to Wisconsin in their car.

Charles Wright returned today from Kenosha where he had been attending the G. R. encampment.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Copeland and family spent Thursday at their cottage at Lake Kegonsa.

C. J. General, Philip Pearsall and their guest, George Dawson, spent Thursday at First lake.

AMERICA'S STRENGTH MUST WIN THIS WAR

DR. DAVID BEATON DISCUSSES PART OF THE UNITED STATES IN THE CONFLICT.

TO MEAN WORLD PEACE

Nation, at First Slow to Realize Principles Involved, Recognizes Democracy and Human Liberty Are at Stake.

America represents at this time, the greatest aggregation of man power and wealth dedicated to the cause of freedom and democracy, that the world has ever known. Her policy will dominate the nations of the world will eliminate racial antagonisms and dynasties and will furnish a force, both moral and physical, to secure the preservation of peace after the war.

These were some of the thoughts emphasized by the Rev. David Beaton, M. A., in his lecture given on last evening at the Congregational church.
The war is so great, the speaker said, that we are becoming mentally confused, and are beginning to feel that the temple of civilization is being reduced to ruins. The soul and spirit of man seem to be in peril and it behooves one to get above the strife and up onto the heights that one may see some of the elemental facts in regard to this war.

Dr. Beaton analyzed in a philosophical way, some of the events preluminary to the entry of the United States into the war. He dwelt on the reluctance of the nation to enter the conflict; loath to believe that we were living in a world where men have to fight. He spoke of the fact that Wilson was elected a peace basis, not because America hated war, and that it was only after Belgium had been sacrificed on the altar, and France, torn and bleeding, was training in the blood, that the people of America realized that these nations and the British navy had saved civilization. A great light broke in upon the conscience of the American people, and that this is a people's war. That the cause of the allies is the cause of America, and that it is a trial between the principles of democracy on the one hand and military slavery on the other.

Dr. Beaton read some passages from the war message of President Wilson, which he said had a most profound influence all over the civilized world and was conceded by diplomats and statesmen to be one of the greatest documents on state matters ever penned. When the president said this time, after recounting the course of events, had said, there was only one choice to make, then the soul of the nation was saved.

There were some things, the speaker said, more precious than peace and prosperity, and these things were honor and justice, and the great virties of life—love, brotherhood, justice, honor and the square deal. Every man or nation—are some of the moral issues to be settled by this war.

America has gone into this conflict, it was said, with clean hands and a pure heart, and with unselfish devotion to a great cause. The result of this terrible Gethsemane, through which the whole world was passing, would be the spirit of international brotherhood, for the sake of the world, America had been too prosperous and self-satisfied, had slighted her citizenship and had only just wakened to her great responsibility in this crisis. But, as President Wilson had said, we must form a concert of powers to save democracy, and that meant unlimited resources of capital, and an army and navy from the United States.

The pacifists have said that war is murder, but all the great principles of human progress have been won in this means and must be defended by it, and the "international peace," which is the goal of all thinking nations of the world, will be the great result of this war.

The address given by Rev. Beaton was a scholarly, finished production couched in vigorous, concise language, and with a clearness of vision, unclouded by prejudice. It was listened to by a large audience. A collection was taken up for the Red Cross work, and George S. Parker, of the board of the Red Cross, had the occasion to speak of the unselfishness, and common helpfulness displayed by everyone in the Red Cross campaign now being carried on in the city.

Frederic music for the occasion was contributed by Miss Grace Murphy at the organ, and the church choir, who sang a number of national airs.

CLOTHES AND MONEY

LOOT OF 2 ROBBERIES

Home of Men in Third and Fourth Wards Entered Yesterday.—One Loses Draft for $105.

Two house-breakings were reported to police last night, one in the third ward and the other in the fourth.
Otto Koffer, living at 515 Fremont street, lost a draft, jewelry and clothing, and Joe Ritz, the shoemaker of Fremont street, lost a large quantity of clothing and shoes. No arrests have been made by the police, although evidence gives rise to suspicion towards several characters. Third ward residents are debating the Koffer robbery as the reappearance of the "Third Ward Raffles."

Koffer's draft was for $105.50 and was payable to the Aaron S. S. Co., by Aaron Jones. The thief who entered his residence—he lives alone, just recently having told neighbors that he planned to bring a wife there shortly aside from taking the draft.
The thief also took a black hat, black coat and vest and a grey pair of pants.

CORRECTION

Owing to an error in the types John H. Jones' name was left off the list of progressive dealers, who handle Thrift Flour, in last night's advertisement. Mr. Jones is a devoted dealer, and his name should have been on the list, so this correction is made.

RED CROSS FIGURES REACH $8,000 MARK

REPORT AT NOON SHOWED $2000 CONTRIBUTED IN PAST 24 HOURS.

CAMPAIGN SPEEDED UP

With Monday Last Day of the Drive, Workers Plan to Secure City's Full Allotment.

Janesville's contribution to the Red Cross war fund amounted to over $8,000 at noon today.

Although this figure is nearly $6,000 in excess of the $2,000 allocated, workers in the campaign were confident that there was still a chance of making a clean sweep and wiping out the apparent deficit. The drive continued with vigor, the teams will even carry on their work on Sunday as far as possible, and Monday, the last day of the campaign, will find every worker available busy soliciting subscriptions.

Tonight the campaign will be thrown open to general donations, which may be arranged for either in cash or by pledges at any of the four banks, at the Red Cross headquarters at the Commercial club office, Reliable or People's drug stores. It has been impossible to reach every person in the city this week, and it is hoped that the teams will be able to reach the fund, even though the teams have made a thorough canvass. Persons who have not been called on may do their bit by calling at any of the places designed and any subscribing. Small amounts are welcomed.
One dollar isn't too little.

There has been considerable competition among the various teams which have been conducted the campaign. Among the leaders was William Vicar's team whose total collections amounted to $2,009 this morning.

This included $188 from the employees of the Parker Van company whose office force alone raised $122.
Through the efforts of John McDonough who has been appointed on Mc-Car's team to solicit the Parker Van company's contribution, the team has total to $200 or more. M. O. Mount's team has reported a total of more than $1,700 and J. M. Connor's team has secured $1,022.

Victor P. Wright, in charge of the campaign among the Handley company employees, reports a total of $119 which will be raised to $125.

The women's teams which were actively engaged in the canvass turned in substantial amounts. The teams continue in the work until the campaign ends.

Frank J. Bruno, in charge of the Red Cross civilian relief work in the central division, arrived in Janesville today and held a meeting this afternoon with the committee of the local chapter on civilian relief, of which Josephine Carle is chairman.

His duties will be to see that the soldiers are called out, in looking after families who may need assistance in addition to what may be supplied by the government. Mr. Bruno was optimistic regarding the present campaign in Wisconsin although several cities were doing nothing at present.

Among these are Beloit and Kenosha. The campaign will be staged in these cities at a later date. Mr.
Beloit is undergoing a reorganization of its chapter after which it will be in shape to participate more actively in the Red Cross work.

Don't forget the big F. A. U. picnic at Crystal Springs park, Sunday, June 24th.

The members of Mrs. George Jacobs' Sunday school class of the Cargill Memorial M. E. church were entertained at the residence of Mrs.
D. M. of Oakland avenue by Mrs. Manross and Miss Bertha Keholter at a miscellaneous shower in honor of Miss Sadie Huggins.

Miss Huggins received many handmade gifts and delicious refreshments were served.

To all members of the B. of B. T.
No. 210. Special meeting will be called Sunday evening 8:00 o'clock June 24th. All C. M. & St. P. members requested to be present to vote on revising of the yard of conduct.

KEROSENE TANK FIRE RUINS GROCERY STORE

Blaze in Storehouse of "Bud" Spohn's Fourth Ward Grocery Causes Almost Total Loss

Aside from a small amount of insurance and the salvage of some of the goods there is little to offset an almost total loss to the stock of Frank C. "Bud" Spohn after a kerosene fire caused by kerosene in his Fourth Ward Grocery at 407 South Jackson street a few minutes before noon today. Mrs. Spohn was alone in the store at the time and the fire broke out in the front of the store and instantly spread to the rear where a heavy cracking of flames and smelling smoke went to the storehouse at the rear and the floor deep in blazing liquid cause for the origin of the fire.

A fifty gallon kerosene tank was kept in the storehouse. Fanned by a light breeze, the fire spread like wildfire throughout the bulk of the store proper and they had a good start in the roof of the rear when the departments arrived.

Have been held down to a minimum been accountable for a delay of at least five minutes in getting connection to the fire station. Mr. Spohn, James Sheridan, Miss Dorothy Heider and Miss Ann Sullivan were at the store and attempted to get out as many telephones and attempted still alarms but they say they were unable to get central. Then Miss Sullivan ran to the rear and got the Jackson and Galena street. Almost simultaneous with this the fire station telephone connection was made.

The Sheridan name was endangered by the flames. The lost to the store building is at least one hundred dollars and that to the grocery stock was perhaps double or greater.

Mr. Spohn, who just recently married and has been in business but a short while, is entirely broken up with the unfortunate occurrence.

OBITUARY.

E. C. Alden.

Funeral services for the late E. C.
Alden will be held from the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Palmer, 337 North Pearl street, Sunday afternoon at three o'clock. The Rev. C. E. Ewing will officiate. Burial will be in the Catholic cemetery. Among those of town relatives who are in the city for the funeral are Mrs. Rose S. Fenton of Milwaukee, sister of the deceased, Mrs. Louise F. Brand and Miss Ada R. Fenton of Milwaukee and Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Mead and children of Madison.

George H. Phillips.

The death of George H. Phillips, well known about the city, occurred at 1:45 o'clock this afternoon at the home 560 North Washington street, being directly due to a paralytic stroke which Mr. Phillips suffered Thursday afternoon. He was fifty-nine years old. Surviving are the widow, Mrs. George Phillips, two sons, Wesley of Beloit and Duane of this city and one brother, Wendell S. Phillips, also of Janesville. Funeral arrangements were made this afternoon but they will be announced Monday evening.

Mrs. A. J. Pegelow of Jackson street is spending several days in Chicago with friends.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Houghton of the town of Magnolia announce the arrival of a daughter, the first girl in a family of seven sons.

LESSON IN CANNING IS ARRANGED FOR CITY HOUSEKEEPERS

Cold Pack Method Will be Explained in Demonstrations Next Friday Afternoon.

Simple, practical and helpful will be the lessons in canning by the cold pack method, which are to be given under the auspices of the Federation of Women's Clubs on next Friday, June 28, at two p. m., at the high school building and also at the Jer-ferson school building. The canning of vegetables will be taught at this lesson by Miss Huggins, Miss Fulton and probably by other experts in domestic science.

All women and girls over ten years of age are invited to attend. Themselves of this opportunity to learn this very useful branch of the housekeeper's art. There is no charge of any kind connected with the lessons and it is the hope of the ladies who are back of this movement to interest the girls who have had some training in domestic science, so that they may take these lessons and equip themselves in the knowledge of the methods employed. In this way, they may be fitted to teach other groups.

The ladies are planning to avail themselves all through the season, and to especially try to interest the foreign population, that they may learn how to conserve the products of their gardens. To this end, notices of the present meeting have been published in the local German paper, and word has been passed around among the Italian residents of the city, inviting their attendance.

By getting the girls of the family interested, it is hoped that later on the co-operation of the mothers may be secured. With the extensive gardening already started and the outlook for a bountiful fruit crop, it is intended to see that everything in food-stuffs is utilized to the greatest extent.

There were no subscriptions over $100 and from this amount on down. That everyone is donating is evident from the sum collected.

Max Henderson and Richard Brown are out from Chicago for a week-end visit at their respective parental homes. They are accompanied by Miss Dreeskell of Key West, Florida.
The boys are part of the unit No. 9 A. C. and expect to be called to France at any time for ambulance work. Their unit has been recognized by the government and they will have their uniforms and are under pay.

The funeral of the late Andrew Jenson will be held from the home on Monday afternoon at one o'clock and from the Norwegian Lutheran church at two o'clock.

Mrs. Purdy of Beloit and Miss Margaret Kulein of Rockford are guests at the G. G. Elderman home.

Miss Clara Swenson of Chicago is visiting at the home of her mother.

Mrs. V. Learn and Mrs. C. Dunn were in Beaver City, visiting on Friday with Mr. Carrier, who is a footville business caller yesterday.

Mrs. P. M. Ellingson was a Janesville visitor yesterday.

Men George Silverwood is reported as being on the sick list.

All places of business will be closed in the city Monday afternoon to allow the merchants and clerks to attend the funeral of the late Mr.
Jenson.

RICH DO THEIR BIT FOR THE RED CROSS

GIFT OF $50,000 BY ONE MILWAUKEE MAN IS SHINING EXAM-PLE OF GENERAL RE-SPONSE.

PLAN FEDERAL CONTROL

Question of Government Supervision of Sale and Distribution of Necessities, Is a Paramount Issue at Washington.

By Ellis B. Cusher.
Milwaukee, June 23.—The campaign for the Red Cross has been the week's undercurrent and Wisconsin men "come through," as she should, with her part of it. After all, $100,000 for a country with a population of 10,000,000 is not a great sum, detracting about 9 cents a head for the population, and every man, woman and child ought to have their proportion. A good illustration of what the rich are doing these days lies in the $50,000 contribution of Ferdinand Schiele, of this city. That sum means that he contributed the share of 500 people. It is worth thinking about when you feel like growling about the rich. You would have to pay more if it were not for such contributions, for the price of food, clothing, shelter, and other necessities, is going up, and the suffering, by everybody. This country is, even with this great sum raised, behind the other countries of the world in Red Cross work. It needs to get in line, for our boys are being killed in France every day now and we should be looking out for them. Yes, our people have done much for the Red Cross, but this week that the women of the Milwaukee French Relief, who have been working since the early days of the war, rank fourth in the United States for the amount of work accomplished.
Another "straw" to indicate that Milwaukee is not "a German city."

Milwaukee speaks over thirty languages, and most of those these respondent volunteers across the street their relief workers here. Notice was received this week, for example, that 100 Serbians who were re-sighted here in May had a routing reception when they went through England lying the Serbian flag at the left of the stars and stripes. This contingent has the reputation of being a good story, with some foundation in fact, though just how much I can't say. As it was told two months ago, the government secret service got word from neighbors that a company of Germans were drilling in a little hall over in the Menomonee valley, on the west side. A raid was decided upon and quite a bunch of men went to the place, potted guards outside to prevent escapes and burst into the drill hall. There was no excitement. The drill proceeded, and the disarmed militiamen of Uncle Sam's law were informed that they were Serbian volunteers who would soon leave for the front. This was one of a number of crazy stories that turned out very much the same way when investigated that were current about the time we went into the war.

The questions of food control and control by the government of other necessities have been at the front in Washington and we will undoubtedly profit by England's experience in these matters. But we will not get into shape without all the best straining tactics possible, most approaching at which is the effort to make out on behalf of the farmers and the working men. Samuel Gompers has fortunately knocked the latter cross of grumblers over the head by explaining their immediate necessity for patriotic co-operation; but the pro-German Socialist element are bound to do their bit for Germany and will howl. As this letter stated, some of the men there is little doubt that the government will control transportation, food and fuel, in order to effect very necessary savings in their cost and distribution. One of the largest coal men in Wisconsin, a producer as well as a distributor, told me that the mine owners and distributors could not handle the problem and that they were practically all of them in favor of government control. The difference in costs of production at different points and the similar varying costs of distribution can be pooled and divided by the government without friction if properly managed. All these questions are significant and require patriotic cooperation on the part of everybody. and it is certain that it will in the long run fare very badly with anybody who attempts to get in the way.

For the time being there will be some satisfaction because as people we are organizing and doing many things at once, but the government will come out all right. Men who are intimately connected with the National Defense Council all speak encouragingly of the outlook.

But even our best and most loyal citizens will "kick." I met a friend on the street the other day, a man who voted for Hughes but one who has been kicking the president. He was good spirit for months, and he went off the handle about the navy department because he saw, or thought he saw something unsatisfactory in the naval recruiting. It is not unusual to hear this sort of faultfinding with the government, and it is not unusual now, that many Republicans are praising and helping the president. I was reminded of an old story of Lincoln.
After Simon Cameron was promoted to the war department to be minister to Russia. One of Lincoln's friends, who was of the sort that was displeased with his cabinet, suggested that while he was shifting Cameron there was a good chance to get rid of the rest of his cabinet. The president said he was reminded of an Illinois farmer who was persecuted by storks. He finally killed his cabinet.
He finally killed him up until one moonlight night he took his gun and hid behind the woodpile within range of the chicken coop. So on and so seven storks appeared. He shot one but didn't fire the other barrel—one stork made stink enough. Mr. Lincoln was not accustomed to having his back striped over the back of a cabinet. That is what such criticism amounts to. Cabinet officers are personal advisers. The constitution does not make them. They are chosen by and act for the president in a very personal relation.

Asia, a magazine published by the American Asiatic Association, is of particular interest in these days of world changes and especially while China is in such continual flux. It has many contributors of note. The June number contains an article by George Kennan upon E. H. Harlan's imperial vision of controlling the trans-Siberian railway and ultimately the railway girdle about the world. An article by Arthur J.
Brown on "The Struggle to Save Russia" and other equally timely discussions are directed at international topics from intelligent American view points. The July number will deal largely with Turkish matters from the angle of American commercial interests in a trans-Pacific and trans-continental approach to Russia, as more favorable to America than by way of the Dardanelles. It is of interest to Americans to look westward to Europe occasionally, in order to realize the complexity of the questions to which this war may give new understanding. We are much in the habit of treating eastern affairs as if they affected only our Pacific coast and considering Europe only from the Atlantic coast. It is well for us to learn that this war involves the United States in every direction and that the globe is a sphere to us, as to everybody else is a flat disc.

It is well to give great help in gaining the larger view of our own interests and responsibilities. Its address is: 280 Madison Avenue, New York City.

Since last week's letter I notice that the department of commerce has issued an issue of the daily commercial reports for the 9th inst. an interesting article to "The Need for Use of Our Interior Waterways," laying great stress on the fact that "the reports for the 9th inst. are overwhelmed by the present traffic." Waterways, of which Germany has over 8,000 miles, have ever since the war began been moving most of the army and supplies, leaving the railroads free to move troops. The strategic value of our interior waterways, if properly improved, would be practically insurmountable in the event of a war.

SIDE LIGHTS on the CIRCUS BUSINESS

For some time past I have been busy checking up people that I have known in the business for many years and from time to time I find something new. I find very few of them, no difference how large their bank account may be, that are satisfied to sit down in retirement and fold their arms.
Many of them are still in the business, and the following is a list of some of the names of the famous Dorothy family of riders of nearly forty years ago, received her first season as a bareback rider at the ring barn of the Burr Robbins circus in this city.

For more than a quarter of a century, J. J. Demott, or Mrs. Charles Robbins, has been one of the famous bareback riders of the country, and her last appearance in Janesville was with the Barnum show when they exhibited here for the last time under the management of James A. Bailey.
J. J. Demott-Robbins, who used to do a star bareback riding act, is a bubble of ingenuity. One of the gamblers in the city, who has been in the operation the corking idea of teaching what she knows to people who have the time and money to pay her for lessons, with the highly satisfying result that she has given classes at her Hempstead, L. I., estate in which society women and girls with motion picture ambitions are being taught the rudiments of stopping on a horse.

Her inherent showmanship taught her the value of "dressing her act" and she is using exceptionally good stage logs, and making a fine early training a productive twist.
She rode in a movie the other day, too. Double the actress who refuses to be strenuous.

Another one that I recall and one who many people in Janesville have known for years, is the widow of late Al Ringling, who retired from the business something like two years ago.

Although Mrs. Ringling can have everything that money would buy, yet after living many of the best years of her life under the canvas and riding from one end of the United States to the other many times, to retire from the business and sit down in a luxurious home soon became monotonous and Mrs. Ringling, who bought up several acres of land belonging to Missor Lake, which is located between Baraboo and Kibbourn, where she will spend most of her summer months.

Mrs. Ringling has erected a new pavilion on this property, one mile west of Fern Dell, which was opened to the public on June 14 with a grand opening day.

Looking forward to the reason that something especially good was expected. Mrs. Ringling has spared no pains to make the pavilion comfortable and convenient and comfortable as to be very attractive.

The pavilion is 32x60 feet, with an excellent hardwood dancing floor. It is electric lighted and has a fireplace.
The building is so but it will be comfortable until the late fall, the walls being finished with plaster board. The windows are screened in for weather comfort from inside.
There is an ample stage and each chair, so that entertainments can be given. There is an electric piano with latest rolls, so that visitors will have an ample entertainment.

A feature that will be appreciated is the picnic tables and benches on the grounds which are for the free use of anyone desiring such. The stage is a fine one, and the building at least is the lunch department. The kitchen belonging to the pavilion is for public use, and those patronizing this may, when desired, have seats on the porch which has tables and chairs. There is no doubt about the pavilion becoming popular before the season is well on.

When a circus can put a smile on the face of an Indian, that in the business is considered going some. This was done a short time ago in a small town in Dakota by the Yankee Robbins show.

Old Chief Picta and his favorite squad, Hole-in-the-Sock, and the entire troupe of the circus went to see the Yankee Robbins circus with the latest style war whoops a tall the Standing Rock agency, South Dakota Indian reservation dates. Many chiefs and warriors have crowded the Yank show and Big Chief Buchanan is "some heap showfolks" out there.

The Indians now go in automobiles instead of bringing the papoose family in a wheelbarrow, as formerly.

On Decoration day the members of advance car No. 1 of the Ringling circus spent the day at the River Mass. At Fox, one of the best known billers in the circus business during his lifetime, is sleeping his last sleep in Oak Grove cemetery in that city, and before Memorial day the men in the car elected a committee to purchase a suitable memorial. On Decoration day the members of the car crew were transported to the cemetery in automobiles where a brief memorial service was held at the grave and a wreath, suitably inscribed, was placed on the mound.

Al Foss was a member of car No. 12 or Ringling Bros. circus during the season of 1915. While in Oklahoma he contracted pneumonia and was taken to a hospital in El Reno, where he passed away. A guard of honor accompanied the casket from Oklahoma to his home city, Fall River, where he was buried.

This is typical of all show companies on the road in that water to be may be showing. If anyone well known in the business is laid to rest in the cemetery it is seldom that they are forgotten. With the Forepaugh show we always took the men, everybody connected with the show, suitable services were held and the grave decorated with a veritable blanket of flowers.

Perhaps no one in show business has had a more phenomenal rise than Clarence A. Wortham, who has spent the past week in Janesville with his

The results of a policy in business or affairs are always traceable back to one cause and a hotel clerk wears an air of superiority and a big diamond, and patronizes you, it is never necessary to look up the proprietor.
A patron knows instinctively who the proprietor is. But a painstaking gentleman at the desk convinces the visitor that the proprietor is a finished product. If an insurance company gets up steam and keeps bearing all the previous records, be sure one man is doing the energizing. The president of the Old Line Life Insurance Company of America is that sort of a person. That's why the boys in the field are all tearing up all their old schedules this year. Up to June 1 the six writers who led the 100 producers in this department handled in almost $25,000 of examined business. In the order named they were R. R. Kimball, J. P. Wolfe, G. J. Han-

High class carnival company. Mr.
Wortham started in the business six years ago in a very small way and today owns and operates four of the largest and best managed carnival companies in the country. The company here is called the No. 1 company, and next week they go to Green Bay, Mich. after which they take to the big state fairs, where they are billed up to late in the fall, their last engagement being at Phoenix, Ariz.
Mr. Wortham and his family, consisting of his wife and two small boys, travel with the No. 1 company.
A governor travels with them, and the boys have their school hours each day, the same as though they were at their home and in city schools.

No doubt Mr. Wortham's success is largely due to the high class management he has surrounded himself with, and much of his time is spent visiting the different shows.

Walter J. Stanley is the general manager of the No. 1 South western, another man who has spent many years in the business, and is assistant to Mr. Stanley.

George F. Donovan has charge of the animal department, and manages the openings and announcements on the streets. Tim Buckley is equerian director of the show and is trainer of the horse, pony and dog performances. Mr. Buckley has created with nearly all the big circuses on the road for the past forty years.

News Notes from Movieland

—BY DAISY DEAN—

The news that Melbourne Macdowell has joined a movie company will be of especial interest to those who have followed the course of legiti-mate drama during the past quarter of a century. With his wife, the late Penny Pennington, one of the most celebrated American tragediennes of the past generation, Macdowell appeared in many classic productions. His best-known roles were Marc Antony in "Julius Caesar," Scarpia in "La Tosca," Boris Ivanoff in "Fedora," Almerio in "Gismonda," and Address in "Theodora Virginis." Macdowell was born about fifty years ago in Washington South River, N. J. Although the son of well-to-do parents, the young Macdowell insisted on living his own life in his way, and instead of going in for college he followed the sea intermittently from his eleventh to his twenty-first year, only taking time enough on to spend a few terms in high school.

The rugged outdoor life built up a wonderful physique, however, that was later to make him one of the most admired figures before the footlights. He now stands a half-inch less than six feet in height and weighs 200 pounds in working trim.
Despite his long and varied career, he is still as active as a man of about half his age and is able to give an account of himself in a melee with the padded mitts that no adversary soon forgets.

As the heavy lead in "The Flame of the Yukon," opposite Dorothy Dalton, Macdowell will make his debut in the silent drama.

ACTING FITS HIM FOR WAR SERVICE

Bryant Washburn is getting enough military training in his picture work to entitle him, pretty soon, to a commission, he believes.

In "Filling His Own Shoes," his most recent production, Mr. Washburn enacted the role of a Red Cross surgeon in the Balkan war. And now, in "The Man Who Was Afraid," his forthcoming feature, he appears as a national guardsman.

For the latter role it was necessary that the star master the mechanism of a machine gun and also the manual of arms.

Resume of the Week's Program of Moving Pictures

By Mrs. Abbie Helms.
A lively little play was seen at the Beverly on Saturday called "Her Official Father," where Dorothy Gish is supposed to be the ward of the directors of a bank, who are her official fathers. She leads the cast in a series of well known, "The Signet Ring," one of the series, "The Perils of the Secret Service," was shown on Thursday.

The Myers had a return date of Jules Verne's story of "20,000 Leagues Under the Sea" for its Sunday offering. This play, with its wonderful scenes of submarine life, with extraordinary effects, and the story of devil fish, and the solemn burials of Captain Nemo, are all very impressive.

The Apollo had Saturday had "The Wolf," a story of revenge in the snow country of the north. On Sunday "Blind Justice" was given, which was also based on a scheme of revenge.
Blamed by a convict who was imprisoned on a false charge. His whole nature was warped and twisted by this wrong and he lived only to avenge it. The latter part of the week, Harry Barrimore gave a most artistic presentation of a gypsy girl in "The Call of Her People." Vivid pictures of the camp of gypsies where the young girl was married by the crude forces of the tribe were presented with the life of luxury in the home of her supposed father. Clad in her bridal robes, she makes a most effective picture of her gypsy lover from the hands of a mob and flees into the wilderness to live the life of the road.

The Apollo had its vaudeville for Sunday, and another of the Beatrice Fairfax stories of newspaper life.
Mae Murray in "The Primrose Ring" on Monday gave a pretty characterization of a young girl's fancies in life.
Tim Moore as the young doctor was especially good. Frederick Warde as the "Vicar of Wakefield" in the best performance on Tuesday gave a most finished and beautiful study of this well known story. The accompanying music given by local talent was most pleasing. "The Sacrifice," a thrilling story of a woman's work as a spy in the war, was given on

The Real Adventure

A NOVEL

By Henry Kitchell Webster

For the next half-hour, until the car stopped in front of her house, Rose acted on this request—told about her life before and since her marriage to Rodney, about her friends, her amusements—anything that came into her mind. But she lingered before getting out of the car, to say:

"I hope I haven't forgotten a single word of your preaching. You said so many things I want to think about."

"Don't trouble your soul with that, child," said the actress. "All the sermon you need can be boiled down into a sentence, and until you have found it out yourself, you won't believe it."

"Try me," said Rose.

"Then attend. How shall I say it? Nothing worth having comes as a gift, nor even can be bought—cheap. Everything of value in your life will cost you time, and sometime or other you'll have to pay the price of it."

It was with a very thoughtful, perplexed face that Rose watched the car drive away, and then walked slowly into the house—the ideal house—and allowed herself to be relieved of her wraps by the perfect maid.

There was still an hour before she need begin dressing for the Randolph dinner; when Rodney came home this vague, scary, nightmarish sort of feeling which for no reasonable reason seemed to be clutching at her, would be forgotten. She wished he would come—hoped he wouldn't be late, and finally sat down before the telephone with a half-formed idea of calling him up.

Just as she laid her hand upon the receiver, the telephone bell rang. It was Rodney calling her.

"Oh, that you, Rose?" he said. "I shouldn't be out till late tonight. I've got to work."

"But Rodney, dearest," she protested, "you have to come home. You've got the Randolphs' dinner."

"Oh," he said. "I forgot all about it. But it doesn't make a bit of difference, anyway. I wouldn't leave the office before I have finished this job for anybody short of the Angel Gabriel."

"But it was absurd that her eyes should be filling up and her throat getting lumpy over a thing like this. But what shall I do? Shall I tell Eleanor we can't come, or shall I offer to come without you?"

"I don't care! Do whichever you like. I've got enough to think about without deciding that. Now do hang up and run along."

"But Rodney, what's happened? Has something gone wrong?"

"Heavens, no!" he said. "What is there to go wrong? I've got a big day in court to-morrow and I've struck a snag, and I've got to wriggle out of it somehow, before I quit. It's nothing for you to worry about. Go to your dinner and have a good time. Good-by." The click in the receiver told her he had hung up.

The difficulty about the Randolphs was managed easily enough. Eleanor was perfectly gracious about it and hinted that Rose should come by herself.

She was completely dressed a good three-quarters of an hour before it was time to start, and if she drove straight downtown she would have a ten-minute visit with Rodney and still not be late for the dinner.

She found a single elevator in commission in the great, gloomy rotunda of the office building, and the watchman who ran her up made a terrible noise shutting the gate after he had let her out on the fifteenth floor. The dim marble corridor echoed her footsteps ominously, and when she reached the door of his office and tried it, she found it locked. The next door down the corridor was the one that led directly into his private office, and here the light shone through the ground glass.

She stole up to it as softly as she could, tried it and found it locked, too, so she knocked. Through the open transom above it, she heard him softly swear in a hoarse sort of way, and heard his chair thrust back. The next moment he opened the door with a jerk.

His glare of annoyance changed to bewilderment at the sight of her, and he said: "Rose? Has anything happened? What's the matter?" And, catching her by the arm, he led her into the office. "Here, sit down and get your breath and tell me about it!"

She smiled and took his face in both her hands. "But it's the other way," she said. "There's nothing the matter with me. I came down, you poor old boy, to see what was the matter with you."

He frowned and took her hands away and stepped back out of her reach. Had it not been for the sheer incredulity of it, she'd have thought that her touch was actually distasteful to him.

"Oh," he said. "I thought I told you over the phone there was nothing the matter!—Wouldn't you be awfully late to the Randolphs?"

"I had ten minutes," she said. "And I thought—" She broke off the sentence when she saw him snap on his watch and look at it. "I know there's something," she said. "I can tell just by the way your eyes look and the way you're so tight and so strained. If you'd just tell me about it, and then sit down and let me—try to take the strain away, please."

"I can tell just by the way your eyes look and the way you're so tight and so strained. If you'd just tell me about it, and then sit down and let me—try to take the strain away, please."

Beyond a doubt the strain was there. The laugh he meant for a good-humored dismissal of her fears didn't sound at all as it was intended to. "Good od to analyze people's souls, he was well equipped to find out, without Rose's knowledge.

He didn't attempt it, though, during his first talk with her—confined himself rigorously to the carefully sifted chaff which does duty for polite conversation over the same hors d'oeuvres and entrees, from one dinner to the next, the season round. It wasn't until Eleanor had turned the table the second time, that he made his first gambit in the game.

"No need asking you if you like this sort of thing," he said. "I would like to know how you keep it up. It can't be any of it get anywhere. What's the attraction?"

"You can't get a rise out of me to-night," said Rose. "Not after what I've been through today. Madame Greville's been talking to me. She thinks American women are dreadful dubs—or she would if she knew the word—thinks we don't know our own game. Do you agree with her?"

"I'll tell you that," he said, "after you answer my question. What's the attraction?"

"Don't you think it would be a mistake," said Rose, "for me to try to analyze it? Suppose I did and found there wasn't any."

"Is that what's the matter with Rodney?" he asked. "Is this sort of—a gesture with his hand took in the table—'caramel diet beginning to go against his teeth'?"

"He had to work tonight," Rose said. "He was awfully sorry he couldn't come." She smiled just a little ironically as she said it, and exaggerated by a hair's breadth, perhaps, the purely conventional nature of the reply.

"Yes," he observed, "that's what we say. Sometimes it gets us off and sometimes it doesn't."

"Well, it got him off tonight," she said. "He was pretty impressive. He said there was a ruling decision against him and he had to make some sort of distinction so that the decision wouldn't rule. Do you know what that means? I don't."

"Why didn't you ask him?" Randolph wanted to know.

"I did, and he said he couldn't explain it, but that it would take a month. So of course there wasn't time."

"I thought," said Randolph, "that he used to talk law to you by the hour."

The button wasn't on the fold that time, because the thrust brought blood—a bright flush into her cheeks and a sudden brightness into her eyes that would have induced him to relent if she hadn't followed the thing up of her own accord.

"I wish you'd tell me something," she said. "I expect you know better than anyone else I could ask. Why is it that husbands and wives can't talk to each other? Imagine what this table would be if the husbands and wives sat side by side!"

The cigarettes came around just then, and he lighted one rather deliberately, at one of the candles, before he answered.

CHAPTER VII.

A Freudian Physician.

Rose's arrival at the dinner—a little late, to be sure, but not scandalously—created a mild sensation. None of the other guests were strangers, either, on whom she could have the effect of novelty. But when she came into the drawing room—in such a wonderful gown—put on tonight because she felt somehow like especially pleasing Rodney—when she came in, she re-organized the social atmosphere.

She was, in fact, a stranger. Her voice had a bend on it which roused a perfectly unreasoning physical excitement—the kind of bend which, in singing, makes all the difference between a church choir and grand opera. The glow they were accustomed to in her eyes concentrated itself into dashes, and the flush that so often, and so adorably, suffused her face, burned brighter now in her cheeks and left the rest pale.

And these were true indices of the changes that had taken place within her. From sheer numb incredulity, she had reacted to a fine glow of indignation. She had found herself suddenly feeling lighter, older, indescribably more confident. They shouldn't suspect her humiliation or her hurt.

Her husband, James Randolph, reflected, had evidently either been making love to her, or indulging in the civilized equivalent of beating her; he was curious to find out which. And, having learned from his wife that Rose was to sit beside him at the table, he made up his mind that he would. A physician of the Freudian school, trained

Sir William shook his head and made his lips express "No."

"I thought so. You've been very kind to me, therefore, I make you welcome to this prescription," which he pulled from his pocket, adding: "It cured me."

"What's the matter across the way?" asked the tailor of a bystander, as the ambulance backed up to the door of his rival.

A customer fell in a fit, and they are taking him to the hospital," was the reply.

and, in the loud, rattling tones of one very deaf, called out: "Doctor, can you cure deafness?"

Sir William shook his head and made his lips express "No."

"I thought so. You've been very kind to me, therefore, I make you welcome to this prescription," which he pulled from his pocket, adding: "It cured me."

"What's the matter across the way?" asked the tailor of a bystander, as the ambulance backed up to the door of his rival.

A customer fell in a fit, and they are taking him to the hospital," was the reply.

Dinner Stories

A struggling artist was recently visited by an old friend who, after inspecting various canvases, stopped before one that he could not quite make out. He didn't know whether

It was a bit of impressionism or a rank attempt at a post advertisement. "Tom," he asked the artist, "what on earth is this picture supposed to represent?"

"Board and lodging for a couple of weeks," answered Tom.

An elderly man once consulted Sir William Gull, the eminent physician, about stomach complaints, but there was a formidable obstacle to diagnosis in the patient being deaf.

"What do you have for dinner?" roared Sir William into his right ear. "Oh, no," was the reply; "plenty of that—two miles regularly after breakfast and two miles before dinner."

"How long do you lie abed in the morning?" "Well, doctor, I shall be sixty-nine this day three weeks."

Without further parley the doctor gave him some simple prescription. At the door the man turned round

FEINE HAS OPINION HE CAN PITCH CARDS VICTORY ON SABBATH

Ex-Logan Square Hurrier Not Afraid of Batsmen From Watertown and Has Much Confidence.

Although the Watertown Goshings are rated all around the circuit as the heaviest hitting team in the Central State League, Feine, the new Cardinal hurler in a letter to his friend here today expressed the belief that he would be able to hold down the league leaders tomorrow and providing his teammates gave him similar support to that of last Sunday the Cards would come out on top. Feine expressed lots of confidence and nary a bit of fear of the heavy-hitting visitors.

Manager Willis Cole will send the same players in the field behind the former Sox mound man that bolstered Feine last week and gave him air-tight support. "Hinter" Delaney will be behind the plate, Kingston at short, "City" Knight at first and ready to pitch, called upon, Goodman at second, Kernan at third, and Eberts, Meyers and Cole in the outer patches.

OLDFIELD-DE PALMA RACE IS POSTPONED

Sport Snap Shots

The recent succession of defeats of Frank Kramer in bicycle races over the springing distances by young Arthur Spencer of Toronto seem to threaten the championship crown of a sportsman whose record is decided in support of the crusade against the bicycle. While Kramer's crown on the bicycle had attracted the attention of the followers of that sport for a couple of years, it was not until 1900 that he made it appear that he was without a peer on the wheel from a quarter of a mile to a mile.

For sixteen years he has continuously held the title of champion and has never hesitated to defend it. He invaded Australia and Europe, not so much to defend his title, as to challenge all and any to take it from him. He has always displayed a cheerful readiness to risk his honors like a true sport instead of using his fame as a means for coralling theatrical or circus engagements and side-couplings he challenges from the grandstands for his honors. He has been the true sporting spirit as distinguished from the mercenary one which has dominated so many who have held titles of various sorts and traded on them. That spirit accounts for the great popularity Kramer has achieved and held in his years before the public. It is that trait, too, that leads lovers of sport in its best phases to note with regret the apparent fading of the laurels of this veteran.

That is not a new movement. It has been started in previous years, but the record breaking conditions encountered by baseball this year in the matter of weather have revived the demand and added emphasis to it. In support of the crusade against the bicycle of the Brooklyn club, always an advocate of later starts and finishes, has had tabulated and promulgated the composite weather records for the last five years. These give October a big lead over April in the matter of conditions suitable to baseball.

There may not be any professional baseball in 1918. Many things may happen to prevent, and the promoters of the nation's outdoor pastime are making all their plans for the future with an "if" in mind. With that provision in the foreground, the national league has instituted a campaign for changing the schedule of the major leagues so as to begin later in the spring and continue later in the fall.

JOIN THE RED CROSS NOW!

HERE'S YOUR CHANCE

To Help Support the Greatest Humanitarian Organization in the World at the Greatest Crisis in the World's History

Men are Giving Their Lives
You Must Give Your Dollars

If the campaigners haven't called on you yet you are still obligated. Drop in at any of these places and leave as much money as you possibly can:

Reliable Drug Co.
People's Drug Co.
Bower City Bank
First National Bank Merchants & Savings Bank.
Rock County National Bank.

YOU know what the Red Cross is. You know what it is doing. You know that there never has been the slightest question of the honesty and efficiency with which Red Cross funds have been distributed or Red Cross affairs administered.

It is the officially recognized agency for voluntary effort in behalf of the armed forces of the nation and for the administration of relief. (President Wilson is also president of the Red Cross.)

It has been officially asked by the Government to aid in the present war and—under the direction of American administrators of the highest capacity, guided by the ablest specialists in hospital care, public health, organized relief,—it is undertaking five gigantic tasks:—

1—To safeguard the American soldiers on American soil. This will mean supplementary medical care, public health work in communities near the great camps, hospital units manned by leading physicians and surgeons, co-operation with agencies which seek to provide wholesome, recreative and social opportunities, the provision of supplies and comforts of many kind.

2—To protect American soldiers in France. All the activities mentioned above will be carried on with even greater care and intensity. The work is already well under way. Hospital units are already on the other side; more are sailing every week. Supplies of all kinds are even now being stored. One of the most alarming features of the situation in France is the spread of venereal diseases. The American Red Cross is planning to create recreation and rest centers with which to combat this menace.

3—To relieve distress and suffering among the civilians as well as the soldiers—to aid the needy dependents of soldiers at home and abroad.

4—To offer aid to America's allies. It is hoped to give tangible evidence of our interest by undertaking many things. The tuberculosis threat in France is really appalling. The Red Cross expects to work through administrative machinery provided by the Rockefeller Foundation, with the hope of making some headway against this menace to the French nation. Russia is in dire need of ambulance and hospital facilities. Nothing is more likely to stiffen the Russian resistance than prompt and generous co-operation from America.

5—To make a beginning toward rehabilitation. The devastated areas of Northern France, and of Serbia call for aid. To assist in providing temporary shelter, and to help the population to renew agriculture and other industries is a fundamental task in which the Red Cross seeks to play an important part.

To carry on this tremendous work—a nation-wide campaign to raise $100,000,000 has begun.
